

Washington, D.C. - U.S. Rep. David Price is continuing the discussion on health insurance reform with Triangle residents by holding telephone town hall meetings. In addition to last week's telephone town hall event, he will hold another meeting tonight. Audio from the town hall meetings will soon be available on this website.

"The current debate on health insurance reform has led North Carolinians on all sides of the issue to express their views – including more than 1,000 Triangle residents who turned out to a town hall meeting in which I participated last month," Price said. "The telephone town hall meeting will allow an even larger audience to participate in the discussion, and they won't have to leave home to do it."

As Congress has been working on legislation to reform the country's health insurance system, Rep. Price has engaged North Carolinians on all sides of the issue – discussing the major proposals and soliciting feedback. In addition to the aforementioned town hall meetings, he has held dozens of meetings and open discussions with North Carolinians on health insurance reform over the past three months.
